The objective of the project is to improve the correctional services in Poland. The project focuses on establishing five pilot correctional complexes, each consisting of a pilot prison, production hall and a half-way house for the rehabilitation of inmates. The objective will be achieved through training of staff, work experience and implementation of reintegration programmes and inter-institutional cooperation i.e. focusing on alternative measures to prison. The new prison pavilions are pilots for the theory of where the modernized training programmes will be applied in practice. The Norwegian prison authorities mentioned above as project partners assist KDI and KRUS in implementing the project.

The project is divided into three modules, each focused on improving different aspects of the Polish correctional and penitentiary system:

- Module 1 foresees construction of five pilot correctional complexes. Each of the complexes will consist of a pilot prison/residential pavilion (for up to 200 places each), a production hall and a half-way house for inmate rehabilitation. The construction of prison pavilions aims to provide necessary infrastructure so that prison sentences can be served in humane conditions in line with CPT standards. Prisoners will have the possibility of working while serving their sentence. They will be employed by entrepreneurs chosen in the fair and equal procedures. The investment will allow the implementing authorities to streamline the principle of progression in punishment and seamless penal system. This should entail the convicted person's stay in a penal institution followed by accommodation in a half-way house accompanied by a rehabilitation programme; engagement of personnel trained according to modernized training programmes; and close cooperation of the prison system with third parties implementing tasks in the justice chain area. According to official plans, the complexes are to be operational from 2023. The staff ratio in the new complexes is to be higher than the national average. The tool will be employed in the voivodships where the new pilot correctional complexes are to be built. Training of staff in the implementation of the tool will be provided. The component also provides for training aimed at increasing the use of alternative sanctions. The training shall be directed to those penitentiary judges, probation officers and prison service personnel who are working in the regions where the new pilot correctional services are built.
