Subject: AAAID's Initiative to Contribute to the Provision of Basic Food Commodities

The Coronavirus (COVID-19) pandemic has become a global crisis that has affected all sectors of the economy. The agriculture and food sector in the Arab countries will be one of the most affected sectors, as Arab countries import most of their basic food needs from abroad.

Additional measures have to be taken to confront the risk of a "shortage of food supplies in Arab countries". As such, AAAID is in the process of setting up an emergency mechanism due to the importance of the continued provision of basic commodities and food supply in Arab countries.

This includes:

- Providing basic food needs in Arab countries.
- Increasing inter-Arab trade for food products.
- Facilitating collaboration through AAAID's Affiliate Companies as well as other companies.
- Providing current information on the surplus quantities of these commodities available for export.

The Arab Authority for Agricultural Investment and Development would like to invite interested parties, organizations, companies and businesses in the agricultural field to reach us on the below contact information:
